Sam Kerns is a handsome serial entrepreneur who has spent the past 20 years writing about small business issues, opportunities: he loves teaching people how to work for themselves and pursue their own dreams. He is proving this in this, his first publication HOW TO WORK FROM HOME in what doubtless will be an ongoing series, so successful is he in communicating his experience and ideas. He opens his book by sharing his personal experiences: "When I hit my mid-twenties, I decided I no longer wanted to work for other people. I was the first person in my family to venture out on my own, so I had no instruction in how to go about starting my own business. I just knew I was tired of going to the office every day and slaving away for someone else's benefit. I had ideas of my own and many things I wanted to accomplish, and I knew that as long as I worked for someone else, my plans would have to stay on hold. So for years, I trudged along and played the office politics. I worked in a job I barely tolerated, and came home too exhausted to pursue my own dreams. But then one day I woke up. I was working as a sales representative for a window covering manufacturing business, and as part of my job, I traveled the state selling to and servicing retail window covering companies. My lifestyle consisted of staying in cheap hotels, eating a diet of fast food, and being away from friends and family for long stretches of time. I was considered lucky because I had a good salary, a company car, and certain freedoms that many employees don't have. For example, as long as I met my sales quotas, I was able to set my own hours. But I was miserable. Now that we feel we know Sam we are ready for his facts and ideas about working from home. These he lists in categories: Online home based business ideas (rich in media ideas), Offline home-based business (eg, the one business idea that you really can make money in your sleep is especially fascinating), and he even adds The Ultimate Passive Income What if I told you that you could build a business by renting out your home or apartment? And that you don't even need to own it in order to rent it out and make a great income? Sounds too good to be true, right? But with the advent of the sharing economy, many people are bypassing the corporate world of hotels and motels and booking directly with people who rent out rooms in their house for a fee. The Industry leader is Airbnb, which boasts over a million listings in 190 countries. The premise is this: anyone can rent an extra room in their home or apartment, or they can rent their entire home while on vacation. Then he even suggests becoming a Cleaning Service and that sounds very reasonable! Entertaining to read, full of smart ideas and stimuli, Sam Kearns is a guy you want to read and follow. In this book, the author reveals some of the myths about working from home and thinking riches will come without work. The emphasis of the book is--there's money to be made, but not without work and in some cases, a little capital is needed. Not only does he explain the ins and outs of online working at home, he gives an overview of working off-line at home and making money. Everything a person needs to know is in there--including cautions to know state tax laws, registering a domain and obtaining product bar-codes. The chapters are categorized in a clear coherent manner and the book is easy to read. He provides links to just about everything he discusses, from free websites to video links to aid in making a decision. Overall, he provides a great deal of information in an abbreviated book that won't take a lifetime to read or understand. I received a free copy of this book for an unbiased review.

Unfortunately, you never know what you're going to get here on . As an author here myself, I am always thrilled to find others who actually care about their audience and write for them in a helpful way. This book is well-organized, well-edited and easy to read. It even covers trying out renting your house out with Airbnb! I didn't see Uber in there, but that's not exactly making money from home (still, it's not in a cubicle farm) :-) Great read!

I have always wanted valuable information on "how to" work from home and make money and now I found the perfect book! It gave explicit instructions, directions and guided you through the process. Thank you Sam Kerns! I would highly recommend this book!

In the first of his Work From Home Series books, Sam Kerns does a fantastic job of presenting 10 great online and offline business ideas that you can start in your spare time. Though you may have heard of some of these ideas before, Sam has done most, if not all of the research in order to get started right way with little to no upfront costs. All of the ideas are conveyed in a very organized and straightforward manner. Highly recommended for anyone who has thought about starting a business from home!

I've read many "work from home" books and reports; this one is by far the best. It doesn't just give you a laundry list of all kinds of businesses you could start from home. You'll get 10 solid, thoroughly researched business models with detailed information about what's really involved. Sam tells you like it is: To be successful, you need to be good at something, or have enough passion to be willing to learn, and then you have to put in some serious work. None of the businesses he describes will make you an overnight millionaire, but they all have true money making potential. If one or more of the businesses included in this book sound interesting to you, it will help you make the decision whether it's right for you or not, saving you a lot of time and frustration. Every business idea comes with pros and cons, a step-by-step explanation how to start and run it, and links to free and very low cost resources to help you keep the startup costs as low as possible. The book is very well organized, and the content presented in a clear, easy to read way. I recommend it to anybody toying with an idea of starting a home-based business. Even if none of the business models presented here appeals to you, you will get a clear understanding of what it really takes to start any profitable business from home. Disclosure: I received a free copy of this book in exchange for an honest review.

I found this book to be a good resource for someone interested in starting a home based business. He doesn't make promises that he can't deliver on and he doesn't promise you that you can get rich quick. He gives some ideas on how to start either an online business or an offline business. The ideas are solid and he gives enough detail to really get you started on your new, home-based business.
